IGAD reconstitutes Peace Monitoring body

IGAD reconstituted the South Sudan peace monitoring body called The Joint Monitoring and Evaluation Commission (JMEC) as the peace monitoring body in South Sudan. JMEC was reconstituted on 19 November by H.E Dr. Ismail Wais who is the Special Envoy to South Sudan and it will be tasked with seeing to it that the parties and stakeholders of South Sudan's peace uphold the Peace agreement.<sup>4</sup>

Peace deal on course

Senior officials from the South Sudan Peoples' Defence Force (SSPDF) and the rebel group SPLA-IO met in Wau to discuss the implementation of the recently signed peace deal. The two sides agreed that they would halt all hostilities in all the areas, provide safe passage for civilians and also provide security to them. An officer from the rebel side said that the SPLA-IO controlled areas are in a bad state and he called on humanitarian groups to provide aid including medicine and water to those people that are in dire need of it.<sup>5</sup>
